

Digital Water Pavilion by Carlo Ratti Associati, Zaragoza – Spain

November 5th, 2013

The walls are composed of digitally controlled water droplets, which can generate writing, patterns or access spaces. The result is a space that is interactive and reconfigurable in that each wall can potentially become an entrance or exit, while the internal partitions can shift depending on the number of people present.